

South Shoreline Plantings, Swan Lake, 2008

Volunteers begin the South Shore project in May, by preparing the ground and installing the first plant plugs along the water line.

In June, volunteers Natalie Dierx and Rachel Bridger supplement the existing young vegetation with additional plant plugs.

By August, the shoreline, which is visible directly in front of Wilson Hall at Fermilab, is starting to look pretty good – and definitely natural!